Patent Office Is Flooded With Applications for Papers.

CLAIM OF WRIGHTS IS GIVEN IN DETAIL

Specification Shows Great Care in Covering Plexible Wing Tip Feature.

By J. C. WELLIVER.

All the inventors in the world seem to have turned their attention simultaneously to aeronautics, and to have directed their output of projects in on tremendous broadside at the patent of-

Six months ago one examiner handled the patent office division to which aero-mantics are directed, and he had rather an easy time of it, withal business was then distinctly looking up. But about the time Bleriot flew across the English Channel, the inventors bestirred themthe United States, Italy, and, in fact, ing into the Washington patent office the drawings and models and specifications, and claims for their multitudi-nous inventions. Many hundreds of them have come within the last few months and the authorities declare that the flood sweeps stronger every day.

From the one man who had an easy thing holding down the division of aeronautics six months ago, the force has been expanded to two and then three, and still is not equal to the task. It ts the busiest corner in the patent of

And in connection with this remarkable development of interest all over the world, there are forming the lines for a great legal contest over the control of certain fundamental patents on the heavier-than-air machines.

Wright Brothers' Claim.

At this meeting the manner of raising subscriptions will also be taken up for the first time.

movements that had sprung up in various quarters to urge the coming of the aviators, were centralized and the various forces will be united through the medium of the Washington Aero Club. The first definite statement of the at-The first definite statement of the attitude of the club came from Mr. Walsh this morning. While various members were known to be heartly in favor of the project they awaited the return of the club's executive before making official statements. When Mr. Walsh arrived he declared he would have to go over the ground carefully before he could make a definite assertion regarding the advisability of making a bid for the meet.

could make a definite assertion regarding the advisability of making a bid for the meet.

The two points which he feared would make the scheme impracticable were the difficulty of obtaining suitable grounds, and the possibility of the warm weather in August. He has become satisfied, however, that the College Park site is available for the requirements of the meet, and it is not believed the weather consideration will be a drawback.

"The work of the meeting this evening will mark substantial progress in the plans for the meet," Mr. Walsh said this morning.

"The question of subscriptions will also be taken up this evening," Mr. Walsh said, "and some definite method of raising funds decided upon."

"The initiative will probably have to be taken by the Commissioners, and the active work will be done through the channels of Washington's trade bodies. Baltimore will, of course, work independently, and the club will exert every influence in its power. But the main thing will be the soliciting of a substantial subscription list."

The grounds at College Park have been declared by aviation experts from out of town as well as by those who have studied the needs of such an event to be eminently suited to the coming meet. Not only the land now under lease by the Government, but additional tracts on either side may be obtained. This will afford a tract two and a half miles long and a half a mile or more in width. In area and in general adaptability this field is said to be the equal of that at Rheims.

Rheims will come in for a share of attention when an open meeting of business men of this city and Baltimore is called.

To these men will be read figures to prove that the meeting at Rheims was
